

Another Brave Old Ex-Confederate
Gone.

The remains of Captain Joseph M. Storey, formerly a highly respected citizen of this town, were brought up from Greensboro, his late home, on yesterday, and will be interred at Woodbine cemetery to day (Thursday) at 3 o'clock p. m. He has lived at the latter place since the war, and died at home there on yesterday. Captain Storey was born in Alabama, but was brought to this county at an early age, and lived here continuously until the close of war in eighteen hundred and sixty-one summoned him to the front.

He was an ardent secessionist, and actively aided in getting up the first company that left the county, and of which he was orderly sergeant. He served with this command about six months, perhaps, when severe rheumatism suddenly disabled him for active duty, and he was sent home upon a discharge. He did not remain at home very long, however, before he was again in war harness and on his way to the front as first lieutenant of what was then known as the company of Captain Mike Mentz first, and afterwards as company G, 43d Ga. Regiment. Upon the resignation of Captain Mintz at an early day, he succeeded to the Captaincy, and remained in the position until almost numberless severe wounds drove him into retirement just upon the eve of the surrender.

Captain Storey was a splendid type of the true Southern soldier. Brave as a lion in action and ever faithful to duty, no matter how severe, he won the respect of his company at once, and retained it unbroken until the end.

He was married in 1861 to Miss Eliza Watson, a most estimable young lady of this place, with whom he lived in perfect harmony for more than 34 years, and who still survives him.

True to his friends in times of peace and to his country in the most heroic struggle ever made by an oppressed people, his memory should live and his name be honored among us all as long as Southern blood flows uncontaminated in Southern veins.
